

Tonight in the Nearly-No-Food-Parliament...

-Yan told us about his non-profit organization, and we voted to give him our vote as a college for a $100k contest.

-Teddy calls for a cage match among the rising sophomore rep candidates. Regular speeches ensue.

-Doug jumps the gun on his tenure and starts pushing keys on my laptop. Also, Amy gets nostalgic and joins in.

-International dinner night is Saturday at 6 in the commons. Come enjoy the Smoking Section, Turkish food, kegs, and apparently, Beata bellydancing.

-Sigrid nicely asked if we would come out and see Dog Sees God, 8 pm at Hamman Hall, tomorrow night through Saturday.

-KTran talked about POD storage for the summer, which is a pleasant alternative to the basement which occasionally experiences flooding. A straw poll taken showed high interest.

-Judicial code reforms will be discussed and voted on next week. We're looking at expanding the court to five non-specialized justices, who will help out with security at Martel events and handle noise complaints.

-RA going away party is gonna be on the 11th, talk to Toni if you have an awesome gift idea or if you want to help out.

-Erik Tanner (Daniel Hays) unfortunately did not defeat the incumbent David W. Leebron for the presidency of Rice University, but nonetheless extend thank their supporters.

-The SA will be sending out apps for a couple of committees, the centennial celebration in 2012-2013 and what I will still call the DTF.

-Go to Rice games this week so we can get money, dude. Get two tickets at tomorrow's women's basketball game during halftime, one ticket at Friday's baseball game, then turn them in at the basketball game Saturday.

-Also, baseball TG from 2:30. Free beer, hot dogs, and soda, but BYO chew, I guess?

-So the director of UNRWA is gonna hang out at Rice, hit up Batoul for details.

-Service hours are due March 14th, that means your last possible chance is to work through your hangover and pick up balloons.

-Speaking of Beer Bike, sign up for teams on Maria's door. And bid on Princeton Review classes; the more you bid, the more dough we get, so get up in it.

-Wild applause broke out when the food finally showed up. People dashed at those tortillas like Titanic passengers to the lifeboats.

If Nicolas Cage wasn't messed up enough in live action...<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5PJddmfesaA>
